News Digest.

A scene of intense interest transpired in the House yesterday, on the occasion of the vote for Speaker. A coalition was formed between the Administration Democrats and the South Americans on SMITH, of N. C., an American. As one after another of the Democrats voted for Mr. SMITH, the excitement grew intense. At one time he lacked one or two votes of an election, but some of the members changing their votes, he was defeated.—The vote as announced stood: SHERMAN 109, SMITH 112, CORWIN 4, scattering 6; necessary to a choice 115. A Washington despatch says that the Republicans are to hold a caucus at noon to-day, when it is supposed Mr. SHERMAN will withdraw from the contest, and either TOM CORWIN or Mr. PENNINGTON, of New Jersey, will be nominated.

Telegraphic news unimportant. We have an account of an accident in Maine.

A despatch from Waukesha states that SARAH JACKSON, of Merton, confessed to the burning RICHMOND'S barn at Lisbon, a conflagration which destroyed a great amount of stock and grain.

In another column will be found the particulars of the fire at Delavan, together with the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. ANDREWS.

From Madison.

Correspondence of the Sentinel.

MADISON, THURSDAY, Jan. 26, '60.

The Legislature has now been in session two weeks and is making fair progress. As has heretofore been the case, there is a large proportion of new men, especially in the Assembly, who need time to become acquainted with Parliamentary rules and practices. Hence, two or three weeks usually elapse before Legislation fairly takes a start. As yet, the Senate and Assembly have only held morning sessions, the afternoon being occupied by the different Committees. The principal Committees all have their hands full, but are working hard to keep up with the press of business. A large number of bills, mainly of a local character, have already been reported and many put upon their passage. The Committee on Claims have shown commendable diligence in reporting bills for various claims against the State and securing their prompt consideration. This is but simple justice to the public creditors.

In the Senate, the Assessment Law of last year has been under discussion, and has been amended in several important particulars. It is not yet perfected, but I am told that it will pass the Senate, shortly, in a much improved shape. The vexed question of the number of newspapers to be taken, at the expense of the State, has been settled by the passage of an act, allowing each member $9,00 worth of dailies and weeklies, to be designated by himself and certified to the Clerk. Under this provision, the newspaper bill of the session cannot exceed $1,500, a very material reduction from previous years.

Mr. RYAN, of our county, a few days since, introduced a bill for the removal of the Capitol from Madison to Milwaukee.—This was referred to the Committee on Militia, and the Chairman, Mr. HORN, has reported the following substitute:

Section I. From and after the 22d inst., the Newhall House, Albany and Young's Halls, Dickinson's Billiard Saloon, the "Home," and the Menomonee Lager Beer Hall, all of Milwaukee, shall be removed to Madison, and shall hereafter be considered as among the institutions of the city of Madison.

Mr. HORN seems to think that if the mountain will not come to Mahomet, Mahomet must come to the mountain; but the days of miracles are past, and neither Madison nor Milwaukee are likely, just now, to lose any of their "peculiar institutions" by Legislative transfer.

The Assembly did a good day's work this morning. Very little time was wasted in talk; the Committees all got through with their reports, every bill ready for a third reading was put upon its passage, and the general file was nearly disposed of, in Committee of the Whole. I can see no reason, at present, why all the necessary business of the Legislature may not readily be done up in an eight weeks' session.

The different departments of the State Government are all working smoothly; the new State officers and their subordinates having got fairly broken in, and are giving good satisfaction. Both the Senate and Assembly have been exceedingly fortunate in the selection of presiding officer and chief clerk; Lt. Gov. NOBLE and Mr. WARREN in the upper, and Speaker LYON and Mr. CRANE in the lower branch of the Legislature, carrying on the busines with courtesy, impartiality and despatch. The Executive Department, under the intelligent supervision of Mr. WILLIAM H. WATSON, the Governor's Private Secretary, is in excellent order.—Mr. WATSON is a model officer, punctual and accurate in the discharge of his duties, courteous and obliging to all who have business with him or with the Executive.

Mr. ELMORE'S resolution instructing the Superintendent of Public Property to display "the stars and stripes" upon the Capitol while either House is in session, passed the Assembly by an unanimous vote, yesterday. Evidently nobody in Wisconsin thinks the Union in any danger, or is reluctant to enlist under its flag, and keep step to its music.

The note of preparation for the two political Conventions on the 22nd and 29th of next month, to send delegates to Charleston and Chicago, begins to be heard. There are rumors of a strong effort on the part of the Administration men proper to secure a voice in the Charleston delegation; but the "Douglas Democrats" claim a unanimous vote in his favor, and are confident of carrying it. There seems no disposition on their part to make a party nomination for Chief Justice this Spring, though last year they were intent upon doing so. Perhaps the result of the April election disinclines them to repeat the experiment. Considerable diversity of opinion prevails among the Republicans as to the course which they should adopt. While some are anxious to make a nomination for Chief Justice, others desire to leave the field open for an independent candidate. A friendly interchange of views between this and the time for the meeting of our State Convention will, it is hoped, result in harmonizing these conflicting opinions.

The Capitol House continues very full.—Mr. DUTCHER and his assistants, PARSONS and ED., are assiduous in their attentions to their guests, and afford them a comfortable home.

We are enjoying superb winter weather.—The sleighing, indeed, is all gone; but the wheeling is good, the sunshine brilliant, and the air healthy and bracing. R. K.

The Fire at Delavan.

Correspondence of the Sentinel.

DELAVAN, Jan. 27th, 1860.

EDITORS OF SENTINEL:—Our village has recently been the theatre of somewhat extraordinary events. On Monday night last, about ten o'clock, a fire was discovered in the most beautiful and substantial brick block in the place. The structure had been built only the last season, and occupied but a few months. Three large stores engrossed the lower story, and two law offices, two printing offices, and two dentist offices the upper story. Considerable property was removed from the lower story, but scarce anything from the upper, so that the loss is very heavy, $11,900 being insured on the building, and most of the effects of the occupants. The Northron office was totally consumed, with no insurance.—The office of the Sovereign, the Democratic paper recently established in Walworth Co., was insured $700—more than three-fourths its value, and occupied the room in which the fire was discovered.

The circumstances were such that suspicion of foul play immediately took possession of many minds, the result of which is, that on yesterday afternoon the wife of G. W. ANDREWS, Esq., and Mr. ANDREWS himself, the editor and reputed proprietor of the Sovereign, were put under arrest, and the former taken immediately to Janesville, where she had resided up to within a few days, and the latter, in default of $2,000 required bail, was taken to jail at Elkhorn, to await an examination on Monday next.

Mrs. ANDREWS is accused, we learn, of attempting to fire a house she occupied in Janesville, three several times within a few weeks, the motive being to obtain the insurance, and the proof against her is said to be positive.—Whether Mr. ANDREWS is guilty, it is impossible now to conjecture; but the excitement against him is quite general and intense. We cannot but feel for him and his family, and hope he may clear himself from suspicion.

On last evening the citizens held a meeting, in which both parties participated, for the purpose of adopting measures to re-establish the Northron, the publishers of which had lost all their interest in the office by the fire, the senior partner losing near $1000. A committee was appointed and a subscription commenced on the spot. It is a hard case, and hoped that, with what may be done in Delavan and adjoining towns, and accommodations abroad, this beautiful and enterprising village may not be without a paper.

It is worthy of note that the Democrats who had aided Mr. ANDREWS in starting his paper, were the most active and forward in procuring his arrest. We hope that, if innocent, he may be triumphantly vindicated from the heavy charge against him. In haste. Truly yours, L.

EARTHQUAKE AT CHARLESTON, S. C.—On Monday evening of last week a violent shock of an earthquake was felt in Charleston, S. C., more violent than has been felt for fifty years. The duration of the greatest force of motion, or disturbance, is stated by various observers to be six, eight and ten seconds, and the whole time of the motion at twenty-five seconds. The direction was from the eastward, or nearly so. On the second and third stories of the office of the Courier there was such concussion as for some seconds as to prevent all work. In one house the disturbance was so marked that the occupants instinctively left it. Buildings were observed to rock to and fro in various parts of the city. Shocks were also experienced in Augusta, Atlanta and Macon. The Charleston News relates the following in connection with the event:

Among the accompaniments of the shock of the earthquake, we have to record one not the least surprising of the subterranean phenomena by which it may have been attended. The tubing of the Artesian well has been prosecuted until the depth had been reached of 810 feet on the 31st of March last, when it was arrested by an obstruction which it was impossible to penetrate or to remove by pressure, the boring having previously reached 930 feet. The weights placed on the tubing amounted to several hundred tons without any perceptible effect, when, on Thursday afternoon, it began to settle, and it entirely disappeared, so that the materials employed in the operation rested on the ground; and on removing the rubbish it was found that the tubing had descended thirty feet.

ANOTHER BARREL TRAGEDY IN CHICAGO.—A despatch was received at the Galena Railroad Freight Office, Wednesday afternoon, about half past one o'clock from Elgin, describing a barrel that had been shipped from that place to Chicago, and requesting that the same be detained, and that any person calling for it be arrested, as the barrel contained a human body. Officer GRAY went over to the depot and opened the barrel thus described. On the barrel head being removed the feet of a human corpse were discovered! The barrel was then again headed up and word sent to the Coroner.

The Coroner having arrived, the barrel was conveyed to the North Market Hall, where it was opened and the body taken out. It proved to be the corpse of a young man, very much emaciated, entirely naked, and with a deep and running sore on his right thigh. A jury being empanelled, it was ascertained that Dr. WINSLOW, of Algonquin, had disinterred the body and shipped it to Ann Arbor, Michigan.

OUTRAGE AT BELOIT.—On Tuesday evening, the 10th inst., an Irishman named DAVID FLAIN entered the grog shop of DANIEL LYNCH, where an altercation occurred, and FLAIN was set upon by Mr. & Mrs. LYNCH, and their son JERRY, who, after beating him until he fainted, kicked him out of the shanty, breaking several of his ribs, and inflicting serious injuries. He managed to crawl to the house of one of his brothers, where he lingered until Friday of last week, when he died. The LYNCHES were arrested by officers WRIGHT and SMITH, and are now awaiting in the county jail their examination, which takes place next Friday. They are old offenders. Mrs. LYNCH has been sent to Janesville before.

DISTRESS AMONG THE POOR AT ST. LOUIS.—The St. Louis papers say that the severity of the weather and the stagnation of business, and the very limited demand for labor, have caused a good deal of distress among the poor of the city. The suffering indigent are far more numerous at this time in St. Louis than would be supposed.

A WEDDING took place in Oxford, Marquette county, Wis., a few days since, and soon after the knot was tied, the bride was taken off by a neighbor to sit up with a sick person. The bridegroom next morning applied to the Justice to have himself unmarried, but the functionary informed him the thing could not be done.

A FAT OFFICE.—From statistics published, it is inferred that the income of the Sheriff of New York is at least $60,000 a year.

Fire at Grand Rapids, Michigan.

At about eight o'clock on Monday evening last, a fire broke out in the store occupied by Messrs. PORTER & SLIGH, in TAYLOR & BARNS' Block, Grand Rapids, which, before it could be arrested, destroyed nearly the entire block, involving, in the aggregate, a loss of private property to the amount of $90,000, besides the destruction of all the most valuable of the Circuit Court records, the books of the County Register's office and the books and papers belonging to the office of the County Treasurer. The losses, public and private, which may grow out of the destruction of the county records, it is impossible to compute. In the opinion of good judges the round sum of $250,000 would be insufficient to cover them. From this block the flames extended to the Postoffice building, destroying that and a building occupied by Mr. KUSTERER as a saloon.

TAYLOR & BARNS' block was among the finest, and the heaviest but one of the four story brick structures in that city, and cost about $40,000. The Postoffice building was of wood, and, with its fixtures, valued at about $1500, and the saloon building adjoining, also of wood, at about $800.

The principal losses are the following:

Miller & Grinnell, groceries, about $7,000, insured for $4,000.

David Miller, store occupied by Goodrich & Gay, $10,000; insured for $2,500.

Porter & Sligh; dry goods and clothing, estimated at about $14,000; insured for $10,000—Ætna, Hartford.

Wm. A Richmond; building occupied by Miller & Grinnell, and County offices, $10,000, fully insured; as we are informed. Mr. R. is absent from the city at New York.

Chas. H. Rogers, store occupied by Porter & Sligh, and offices above, $10,000; insured for $7,000—City, Hartford, $2,000, Home, N. Y., $2,000, Conway, Mass, $1,500, Atlantic, N. Y., $1,500.

Goodrich & Gay; hardware, damage $8,000 to $10,000; insured for $9,000—Home, $4,000, Phœnix, Hartford, $4,000, Irving, N. Y., $1,000.

Jacob Barns; store occupied by Mendall & Co., damage to building probably not over $1,000; fully insured.

Barns & Taylor; post office building, about $1,000; no insurance.

John E. Earle; saloon building, valued at $800, insured for $500.

J. Kendall & Co., had a heavy stock of dry, fancy and millinery goods, which were badly damaged by removal, water &c.; they are insured.

Ashley & Miller's loss in library and office fixtures, is probably $600 or $800; no insurance.

Lucius Patterson, with whom was also T. L. Griffin lost his entire library and office fixtures, valued at about $1,000; no insurance.

P. R. L. Pierce, lost all of his own private property, among which were some very valuable drawings, drawing instruments, &c., not less than $1,000; no insurance.

L. Buell, daguerreotypist, $500; no insurance.

G. P. Sexton, news dealer, about $200; no insurance.

R. P. Sinclair, Esq., was absent from the city. His law library and other books and papers, with the exception of such as were in his safe, may be reckoned a total loss—how much we are not informed; probably $800 or $900.

Dr. E. R. Ellis; library and surgical instruments, medicines, &c., about $400, no insurance.

Hindsil Bros., books and stationary, considerably damaged by removal, &c., and the same may be said of the stock of drugs and chemicals of T. H. Dyon, Jr.

TO SHOW THE FOLLY of doubling the ability of the New York State Arsenal to bear the weight of a few hundred men while drilling, it appears that, before it was accepted by the State, it was tested by a pressure equal to the weight of 85,882 soldiers! Not much danger of that building falling we should imagine.

BUFFALO AND GREEN BAY LINE OF STEAMERS.—We learn from the Green Bay Advocate that the two staunch propellers Comet and Rocket, together with the steamer Michigan, are to run between Green Bay and Buffalo during the coming season of navigation.

BARABOO FEMALE SEMINARY.—This Institution is about concluding a very successful term, under the admirable management of Miss MARY MORTIMER and her assistants, and will close with the usual examination on Monday and Tuesday of next week.

SAD ACCIDENT.—ADOLPH ZIMMERMAN, Esq., late County Treasurer, residing at Mequon, Washington county, had one of his legs broken on Tuesday, by being overturned with a load of straw.

DEATH OF JOHN BANNISTER.—It is with feelings of deep sorrow, shared by the entire community, that we announce the death of John Bannister, late Mayor, and for many years a resident of this city. The deceased, had, for a long time, suffered with an affection of the lungs; and his death at this time, though a severe blow to relatives and friends, was not entirely unexpected. He expired at his residence on the evening of Friday, the 20th instant. Funeral services were held last Monday morning, under the direction of the Masons of this city, of which society he was a member; after which a large procession formed and proceeded to the Bienzi Cemetery, where the body was buried with Masonic honors.

Mr. Bannister was one of the earliest settlers in the county; and was among the first who erected for themselves habitations in what was then but a wilderness, where since has sprung up our flourishing city with its busy population, and has perhaps done as much for the advancement and prosperity of Fond du Lac as any other man. In all the relations of public and private life, his course has been such as to win the universal respect and esteem of our citizens, and to endear him to a large circle of acquaintances and friends with whom he has come in social contact. A good man has gone from among us.—Fond du Lac Dem. Press.

ANOTHER DREADFUL ACCIDENT—SIX PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH.—Last week it was our painful task to record, in a portion of our edition, the particulars of the burning of a house in the town of Glenmore, in this county, about seven or eight miles from Depere, by which Mrs. Berney and two children were burned to death.—Now we have the news of a similar accident in Washington Harbor, Door county, which was attended with a still greater loss of life.

We learn from a letter from Wm. J. Nolen, of Washington Harbor, shown us by Dr. J Willey of this city, that on the night the 19th of Dec., the house occupied by Mr. James McDonnel took fire, probably from something connected with the stove pipe.—The family were all asleep, and the flames made such rapid progress that nothing was saved. Four children were burned to death in the house, another injured so that it died the next day, and Mrs. McD. died from her injuries on Thursday, Jan. 5th. Mr. McDonnel, and one child, who is also badly burned, are all that remain of the family.—Green Bay, Advocate.

THE NEW YORK CORRESPONDENT of the Charleston Mercury, after mentioning the fact that one mercantile firm in that city procured a second edition of a city paper containing a full account of the great Union meeting, which they sent to all their customers and friends in the Southern States, adds that other dry goods dealers are getting out, in handsome book-form, a report of the same meeting, which they will dispose of in the same way. Some manufacturers of domestic goods, whose main market is South, are stamping their fabrics with symbols of clasped hands, "the Union forever," and other national devices, which, it is hoped, will recommend them to Southern buyers.—Many firms have been re-constructed for the purpose of getting out "tainted" members, and presenting an undivided conservative front.

WE UNDERSTAND that the indefatigable Constable Reese, has almost succeeded in getting the two men who were concerned in the burning of the barn and two cows in this city about a month since, into the arms of justice. One of them now lies in our jail, and the other will probably have, by this time, been arrested in Milwaukee.—Mad. Patriot.

PEALE'S "COURT OF DEATH."—This magnificent painting, it is well known, has been engraved, and so popular is the picture that since its reproduction in engravings the advertiser, G. Q. COLTON, has his hands full in supplying orders. The price of the engraving is only one dollar. By enclosing which, with four three cent stamps, in a letter, directed as below, a copy will be secured. We make the following extract from a private letter received from Mr. COLTON:

I found that my long advertisement in the Sentinel, paid me five or ten times over; for I have received orders for the engravings ever since, from all your section of the country. The enterprise of selling 100,000 engravings of the Court of Death, for one dollar each, instead of 500 copies, at five dollars, has proved a decided success, thus far. I find on my table every morning, about 100 letters, which have arrived by mail, nearly all of which contain money—bills, gold or stamps—with orders for the engravings.—Most of them contain $1 and four letter stamps, for one copy; others contain $5, without stamps, for six copies, while others contain larger amounts or drafts from agents. These orders are all filled so as to be sent off by the night mail. Since I have made new and more liberal terms with agents, I have been compelled to take out my advertisement from the New York City papers, because I could not fill the mail orders, and supply the city at the same time. I am having duplicate plates prepared, so as to obtain a larger daily supply. I have not yet received the first letter of complaint or dissatisfaction. A man who would hesitate to pay a dollar for such an engraving, a fac-simile copy of REMBRANDT PEALE'S Court of Death—23 by 31 inches—would remind me of the Irishman, who, when the opposition boats were running between New York and New Haven, and carrying passengers for a shilling each, (the usual price $3,) stepped up to the Captain's Office and enquired, "Can't ye carry a couple of us for a shillin,?"

I am sometimes asked, whether money can be sent safely by mail. So far as I have been able to learn, or hear from my correspondents, not one letter in a thousand fails to reach me, if plainly directed "G. Q. COLTON, 37, Park Row, New York." Though if large amounts are sent, I advise to have the letter registered.

You see I do not regret having advertised in the Sentinel.

LEAHY, the enterprising gas-fitter under YOUNG'S new block, has something new in the way of gas burners, which we think worthy the attention of those who burn gas and want to burn it advantageously and economically at the same time. A full description of it will be found among the new advertisements.

THE HOME MONTHLY for February is what we call a good magazine. Admirably adapted for the family circle, with nothing that could offend the most fastidious literary taste. We commend the periodical to all. Terms, $1,50 a year. AVERY & GILDERSLEEVE, Buffalo, N. Y.

CALEB WALL has a sale of dry goods, groceries, &c., &c., Wednesday morning, February 1st.

YOUNG MEN'S ASSOCIATION LECTURES.—'BAYARD TAYLOR AND 'GRACE GREENWOOD.'—The course of lectures seems to increase in interest, judging by the attendance, the number Thursday evening exceeding by several hundred that of the first. The subject was one well fitted to secure attention—personal details in the life of great men being the best staple for the occasion. Mr. TAYLOR showed an intimate acquaintance with his subject and his surroundings, social and literary, and possessing also the advantage of familiarity with localities, the field of HUMBOLDT'S great scientific researches, could not fail, with his acknowledged powers of description and characterization, to bring vividly before his hearers all that related to his theme.

Touching the entertainment of this evening, we suppose gentlemen may themselves indulge in some degree of inquisitiveness regarding the qualifications of the fair lecturer. In the matter of composition, however, we have ample evidence in works proceeding from her pen, and it is fair to infer, from the reception she has met, favorably of the rest. At all events, the novelty of the occasion will fill the Albany with its wonted, or even a larger audience.

Resolutions Introduced—By Mr. Horn, that the Governor be requested to communicate to the Assembly all correspondence between himself and the Secretary of the Interior, or any other person, relative to the survey of swamp and overflowed lands; also a resolution to investigate the affairs of the State University.

Bills Introduced—In relation to cases in equity; also to change the laws in regard to collecting demands against vessels, shippers, &c.; to amend the charter of the city of Madison; to authorize the aldermen of the Third Ward of the city of Milwaukee to issue ward bonds to purchase real estate for use of such ward; to amend the assessment laws; a bill concerning excise; to change the name of Amanda Louisa Krugum; to amend the charter of Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Madison; a bill concerning costs and fees; relating to public officers and their duties.

The committee to whom was referred the matter of reducing the fees of legal advertising, made a report setting forth that in their opinion such a reduction would be unwise and unjust. Mr. Elmore gave notice that he should debate the matter, and it was laid aside until Monday.

SENATE.—Bills Introduced—To amend chapter 206 of general laws of 1859; to amend the act incorporating the village of Horicon; to provide for the making of new jury lists for Sheboygan county; to cede jurisdiction to the U. S. to certain lands in Brown, Oconto, Kewaunee and Door counties.

Several standing committees made reports.

The joint resolutions for the appointment of a committee of three to report at an early day, whether any change in the present system of county government is needed and called for by the people was taken up. After debate by several Senators, the resolutions were adopted. Ayes 17, nays 11.

The Assembly amendment to the newspaper bill striking out $10 and inserting $9, was taken up and lost.

The Senate then went into a discussion on the details of the assessment laws.

Bills Passed—For making a new list of juries for Sheboygan county; to repeal chapter 114 of laws of 1859, conferring civil jurisdiction on the county court of Crawford co; to amend the law relating to the Dane county court; to amend the charter of the Merchants Mutual Insurance Co of Milwaukee; to repeal the law establishing the office of Comptroller. On this question a long debate ensued in which several Senators participated. The bill was re-committed to the committee on judiciary, and the Senate adjourned.

Who Is Responsible!

We commend to the attention of our readers the following article from the Rochester Union, a Leading Democratic paper in Western New York. It is frank, manly and truthful, and fastens the responsibility, for the present condition of things at Washington, upon precisely the men and the party to whom it properly attaches. Were there a few more such out-spoken and independent papers among the Northern Democratic press, the House of Representatives would be organized without further delay:

In proportioning the true measure of responsibility for the prolonged disorganization of the House, which should be assigned to the several congressional parties or factions respectively, we should keep in mind the fundamental idea of our Republican system: that in respect to all legitimate questions of government and policy, THE MAJORITY SHOULD RULE. Applying this principle to the case in hand, we shall readily see that the responsibility increases in the inverse ratio of the numbers composing the several parties or factions into which the House is subdivided. For instance, supposing there were three divisions in the House—two of equal numbers, comprising all the members but one, and that one obstinately persisted in voting alone; would not the country all but unanimously hold that he should yield his opinions (or "principles" if you please) in order to effect an organization, rather than the hundred and more who find no difficulty in yielding their personal views so as to enable them to act in concert? On this proposition there is hardly room for a difference of opinion.

It follows, then, that these "scattering" members of Congress should bear the chief odium and be held mainly responsible for the disorganization of the House. To have stood out for a while would have been well enough; they would thus have vindicated their political principles without subjecting their integrity or their patriotism to just suspicion. But to block the wheels of Government and expose the country to possible danger of anarchy and civil war, for months, on the pretence that they cannot conscientiously vote for either the Democratic or the Republican candidate—that is mere impudent imposture and it should be indignantly rebuked by every true American.

Of course, we should prefer to see these "scattering" gentlemen abandon their false position and elect a sound Democrat to the office of Speaker. But if they continue longer to insist on selling their support—for that is really what their conduct necessarily implies—we should be very glad to see the Democratic members concur in adopting the plurality rule instead of bribing or buying the stragglers. We all owe primary allegiance to our country rather than our party; and we should be loyal to the grand idea of our Republican system, even at the cost of party defeat. If we cannot swell the Democratic, so as to make it equal the Republican vote, we should acquiesce in the election of the Republican candidate. We are in no just sense responsible for the accomplishment of impossibilities; and at the end of seven weeks finding ourselves still in the minority as compared with the Republicans, we are warranted in assuming that the election of a Democrat is impossible. So long as the House remain unorganized and irritating speeches are the order of the day, there is a constant danger of personal collisions which may eventuate in a rupture between the North and the South which will involve civil war. Between that state of things and the election even of a Republican Speaker, no good and true man can hesitate to choose.

The Republican Creed.

The New York Courier & Enquirer well says:

Overlooking for a moment, the daily falsehoods and deliberate misrepresentations of the presses alluded to, and of most of the Democratic journals of the country in regard to the principles of the Republican party, let us briefly reiterate the Republican creed.—That creed is summarily put forth in the call for a meeting of the Republican National Convention in June next, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the Presidency and Vice-Presidency; and the Baltimore Patriot, published in a Slave State and never known as a Republican journal, thus analyzes that call and the creed of our party:

OPPOSITION —1. To the policy of the present Administration;

2. To federal corruption and usurpation;

3. To the extension of Slavery in the Territories;

4. To the new and dangerous political doctrine that the Constitution, of its own force, carries Slavery into all the Territories of the United States;

5. To the re-opening of the African Slave trade;

6. To any inequality of rights among citizens;

7. And who are in favor of the immediate admission of Kansas under the Constitution recently adopted by its people;

8. Of restoring the Federal Administration to a system of rigid economy, and the principles of Washington and Jefferson;

9. Of maintaining inviolate the rights of the States, and defending the soil of every State and Territory from lawless invasion;

10. And of preserving the integrity of the Union, and the supremacy of the Constitution and laws passed in pursuance thereof, against the conspiracy of the leaders of a sectional party, to resist the majority principle as established by this Government, even at the expense of its existence.

We cordially accept of this manly dissection of the Republican call; and we speak the sentiments of nine hundred and ninety-nine out of every thousand Republicans in the United States, when we say—"that is our creed—that is the recognized creed of the Republican party."

A NEW PLAY.—Mr. NEAFIE, the star tragedian, has been busily engaged of late, in preparing things for a new Indian play, called "Wicomikei, or the Indian's curse." It is written expressly for Mr. NEAFIE, by H. J. CONWAY, at a cost of $500, and will be brought out at one of the New York theatres in course of three weeks.

Mr. NEAFIE has travelled sufficiently in the West, for the past few years, to have gathered abundance of material for getting up a representation of this sort, such as "properties," costumes, and characteristics of Indian life. His long experience and excellent taste in the business and literature of the stage, besides his merits as an actor, promise a production of great interest and powerful effect

POSTPONED.—The sale of the lake steamers and canal boats of the American Transportation Company, at Buffalo, has been postponed to Feb. 7th. It is rumored that the Western Transportation steamers will be joined with the N. Y. Central steamers, and form one line.

PASSENGER INCREASE.—The total number of passengers carried over the Detroit and Milwaukee Railroad, during the year ending Dec. 31st 1859. was 199,337, against 124,013 during the previous year.

FIRE.—The new school house at Richland Centre was almost destroyed by fire on Saturday last. The flames originated in a box of ashes.

"Who Shall be Chief Justice?"

EDITOR OF THE SENTINEL:—An article appeared in your paper of the 25th inst., in relation to the subject matter of the caption to this communication, which needs some correction. The writer of that article is pleased to say, that a powerful effort is being made by Judge SMITH and his friends to make him the nominee of the Republican Convention for Chief Justice. It may be true, and it is undoubtedly true, that Judge SMITH'S friends, and the friends of the vital principle of the Republican party, do desire his nomination and election. It is also true that they will endeavor to secure that result. It is also true that nine-tenths of the Republican voters desire, and are determined, if possible, to accomplish that result. But it is not true that Judge SMITH is making efforts, either powerful or otherwise, in that direction. We think we understand his position upon this matter, and if we do, it is this: Judge SMITH, we believe, is perfectly content to leave the matter to a fair expression of the people. We have inquired somewhat in this respect.—During six years service as Judge of the Supreme Court he was absent from the Bench only two or three days, and them for illness; and it is for the people to say whether he discharged his duty well or otherwise. If there is any fault in the matter, it is that Judge SMITH will not take those steps which many deem proper, to secure his own nomination and election.

But the writer of the article is pleased to assert that Judge SMITH'S name was warmly pressed twice before the Republican caucus last Spring, for a nomination for Associate Justice, and twice deliberately rejected.—Now it is well known that last Spring there was no authorized convention or caucus on the subject of that judicial election. It is true, a portion of the Republican members of the last legislature assumed to act in that matter. But it is equally true that a considerable portion of the Republican members refused to participate in such action. It is also true that so far from Judge SMITH'S name having been rejected, his position was fixed and then immovable that he would not take a party nomination. The legislative caucus resolved, by a majority of one vote, to make a nomination, and then proceeded to nominate our noble champion of human as well as State rights, BYRON PAINE.

But when the parties had arrayed themselves against each other, and the vital issues of the Republican party were at stake, what was the action of Judge SMITH? It is well known that he was strongly pressed to run as an independent candidate, notwithstanding the action of the two parties. Yet he did not set up his own will or judgment against the policy of the (so called) representatives of public opinion in regard to party nominations, but, with a noble devotion to principle, he declined the proffered support of thousands of friends, and threw his influence in favor of Judge PAINE. Is devotion like this to be overlooked? Is self-sacrifice so cheerful and so vital, to be used as an argument against the man who made it, and by the party who profited by it?

All that is said by your correspondent in favor of Judge TAYLOR is cheerfully admitted; but it is believed, in view of the great issue at stake, the peculiar temper of the people, that Judge A. D. SMITH, and he only, is the man for the time, competent to the emergency, and equal to any occasion which the dignity of the State or the liberty of the citizens may require. MILWAUKEE.

More Chivalry.

The instances of gross and tyrannical injustice perpetrated in the Southern States against those who are known or suspected to fail of sympathy with the prevailing idea respecting slavery, have become so common that the papers have almost ceased to record them in detail. A recent case, however, exhibits, like that of Crangale of Savannah, such cool contempt of moral and legal obligation, and, moreover, such a ridiculous disproportion between the alleged offence and the penalty inflicted, that we are tempted to make it public.

Not long since Madamoiselle Favarger, an accomplished French lady, the daughter of Protestant clergyman in Paris, was engaged in this city as a teacher of French in the "Old Dominion Institute" at Richmond, Virginia. Here she continued to discharge her duties under an unconditional engagement for a year, with a like engagement for another year on the sole condition that she should be found competent, until the latter part of November next, just before the execution of John Brown.

Miss Favarger seldom saw any papers, took no interest in politics, and never in no way broached the subject then uppermost at Richmond. Not speaking English perfectly, she failed to appreciate the absorbing interest which was concentrated upon the affair at Harper's Ferry. But luckily or unluckily she was a woman, and had a woman's heart, and was so unfortunate as not to understand that she was where she was expected to deny her natural emotion and pretend to be what she was not. Accordingly, when, a day or two before the memorable second of December, one of her zealous pupils said to her: "Mademoiselle, Old Brown is going to be hung of Friday, aren't you glad?" She replied, "No, my dear, I am not glad; I pity poor Brown, for I think he thought he was doing right."

That was all; but it was enough. Instantly the young spies flew to headquarters and denounced the traitor. There was no hesitation, no pity. Engagements made with a woman who could utter such atrocious sentiments when directly interrogated, were only made to be broken. Mademoiselle Favarger, who never dreamed of the torch she had applied to the proud fabric of Virginia's prosperity, was astonished when she was informed of her sin and its consequences. But remonstrance was vain, and she returned to New York, with the following certificate from the principal of the school:

RICHMOND, VA., Dec 3, 1859.

This is to certify that Mdlle Sophie Favarger has been employed in my school as teacher of French. I regard her eminently qualified to teach her native tongue. She gave, so far as I am aware, entire satisfaction (in her teaching) to the patrons of the school. She has been dismissed from the school simply on account of the anti-slavery sentiments she expressed before the school.

T. L. GALLEHER,
Principal Old Dominion F. Institute,
Richmond, Va.

It may be added that Mdlle Favarger never taught nor appeared "before the school," but received her classes at her own quarters. —N. Y. Evening Post.

An Unfriendly Firm.

One of the most magnificent stores on Broadway, New York city, is located at No. 111, on the corner of Thames street, opposite to Pine street, a few steps only above Trinity Church. Its several stories in height is visible to the outward eye, but there are several stories underground, cellar under cellar, the whole forming an immense establishment. The card of the firm doing business in this store reads "Claflin, Mollen & Co., Importers and Dealers in Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods, German and English Hosiery, Boots and Shoes and Yankee Notions." Their trade annually amounts to millions, a large portion of which is with the South. Indeed, whole stocks in this city and in Columbia, and doubtless other Southern cities, may be said to have been purchased of this single firm. One of its salesmen was at one time a merchant in this city, which he was forced to leave under circumstances which have made his name a most odious byword.

This house of vast wealth, influence and credit, was requested to sign the call for the late Union Meeting in New York city, a meeting which was intended to conciliate and favor the South—and refused peremptorily; the second member of the firm being, at the same time, a large, liberal and constant subscriber to abolition and Black Republican funds. We are assured that this house deserves the denunciation and condemnation of every Southerner.—Charleston Mercury.

This is but one out of several specimens of the way in which an attempt is made to compel merchants to sacrifice their principles in order to keep their business. Signatures to the calls of Union meetings are demanded under penalty of just such denunciation as the above. It may be doubted how much "aid and comfort" to the South is worth, which is extorted by fears instead of sympathies.

On the other hand, it is not at all doubtful how this denunciation will affect the objects of it. The advertisement thus given them, will increase their business instead of diminishing it. No man, North or South, whose custom is worth having, will withdraw it from merchants because they value honesty above profit; while hundreds who have never purchased of them, or even heard of them before, will be induced to transact business with them by the proof thus given that they are upright and worthy men.—Albany Journal.

Science and Art.

MACHINERY FOR PRINTING DRESS GOODS.—The printing department of a factory making articles of ladies' wear, such as calicoes, ginghams, lawns, de laines, etc, is one of great interest to the visitor. The machinery gives evidence of most wonderful ingenuity. The lady who puts on a calico or muslin dress with a variety of figures and colors, has little idea of the amount of skill and labor it takes thus to adorn her. In the first place a corps of artists are employed, who furnish each season from their own fancy or from nature, colored drafts, on paper, of flowers, vines, sprigs, or other figures that, in their judgment, will look well when transferred to wearing apparel. These go into the hands of the engraver, who cuts them on small cylinders of soft iron, about an inch in diameter, or larger should the figure require it. They are then transferred in relief to another cylinder of hard iron or steel; from which they are impressed upon still another and larger cylinder, of copper, of a length corresponding with the width of the fabric, and some four or six inches in diameter.—These last are inserted in the machinery, somewhat after the manner of printers' rollers—each fitting into a trough which contains its appropriate coloring preparation. Every color requires a separate roller; and if there are as many as ten, as is often the case, all the rollers are placed into the machine, working in their respective troughs, and, by once passing through the cloth receives all the impressions—separately, it is true, but in such rapid succession as to be almost simultaneous.

This is the wonderful part of the process. It will be perceived with what mathematical accuracy every roller must be adjusted for its impression to fall exactly in the right place; for the deviation of a hair's breadth in any one figure, would spoil the whole operation. And then another difficulty, which looks to be wholly impracticable, is, how to prevent the colors from mixing on the cloth, or the latter from becoming stained in passing around the rollers. This is provided for by an invention that at first sight appears wholly inadequate to the purpose, though it does answer, and with a perfection that is next to miraculous. It consists of a metalic scraper, so nicely adjusted to the surface of the roller, that as the latter comes out of the trough, literally besmeared to the depth of an inch with the tenacious preparation, it comes in contact with the scraper, which removes every particle from its surface, except that which is deposited in the engraved lines to be transfered to the fabric. So perfectly is this accomplished, that after the roller has passed the scraper, the smooth portion will not soil a white pocket handkerchief.

ADULTERATED LIQUORS.—Dr. Hiram Cox, Inspector of Liquors at Cincinnati, has published many deeply interesting facts of his experience in testing liquor sold in that city. In seven hundred inspections of lots of liquor of every variety, he found that 90 per cent were impregnated with the most pernicious and poisonous ingredients. Nineteen young men, all sons of respectable citizens, were killed outright by only three months' drinking of these poisoned liquors. Many elder men, who were only moderate drinkers, died within the same period of delirium tremens, brought on, in consequence of the time means, brought on, in consequence of the time usual even with confirmed drunkards, by drinking the same poison. Of four hundred lusane patients, he found that two-thirds had lost their reasons from the same cause.—Many of them were boys under age. One boy of seventeen was made insane by the poison from being drunk only once. Seeing two men drinking in a grog shop, and that the whiskey was so strong, that it actually caused tears to flow from the eyes of one of them, the doctor obtained some of it and applied his tests. He found it to contain only 17 per cent. of alcohol, when it should have had 40, and that the difference was supplied by sulphuric acid, red pepper, caustic, potash, and strychnine. A pint of this liquor contained enough poison to kill the strongest man. The man who had manufactured it had grown wealthy by producing it.

Dr. Henri Erni, in an article in The Peninsular and Independent Medical Journal, denies that strychnia is ever used for the adulteration of alcoholic liquors—first, because it would be detected by its intensely bitter taste, which is evident when dissolved in seven hundred thousand parts of water; second, because of its high cost; third, because it is a most dangerous poison, and one which, unlike most organic poisons, can be readily detected by chemical tests. With regard to malt liquors, Dr. Erni states that this poison cannot be introduced into them together with hops, since the tannic acid, which these always contain, precipitates strychnia completely, in the form of an insoluble compound. As a substitute for hops, it would be much less likely to be employed than aloes and many other bitter drugs on account of its high price.

ARTESIAN WELL-BORING.—An artesian well of 26 inches bore—stated to be the largest in the world—has been completed in Birmingham for the supply of a large bathhouse. The machinery employed to bore this well is similar to that used by the Chinese, and was found very efficient. It consisted of a heavy bar of cast iron, armed at its lower end with a number of cutting chisels, and was suspended by a rope, which received an up-and-down motion from a small steam engine at the top. The torsion of the rope was sufficient to vary the position of the chisels at each stroke. The apparatus of most well borers consists of a cylindrical chamber secured around the cutting chisels, which, by means of valves, receives and retains the abraded portions of the rock as cut. The new apparatus invented by Mr. Greenly, the engineer of this well, consists of a long cylinder, nine inches in diameter, with a valve and piston fitted in it like a pump.—The cylinder was lowered down whenever the boring was to be cleared, and it was filled full of the debris by the sucker or piston being raised, when the whole was then drawn up.

REPRODUCTION OF OYSTERS.—The American, of Brest, states that the system of M. Coste for the reproduction of oysters, has just been tried by Capt. Le Roy, of the French navy, in a large pond filled with salt water, at the head of the Bay of Poulmic. On the 15th of July last he had one hundred and fifty mother oysters, which had been dredged on the bank of St. Marc, placed in this pond, and on the 25th he had a number of planks and bushes placed so as to collect the spawn. A short time after, the Captain had some oysters dredged at Tregorvan, which, from their bad quality were not considered fit for use. These he had placed in the Bay of Poulmic, a short distance from the shore. On the 15th of November, an examination of the bed formed in the salt water pond was made, and the results were found most satisfactory. To the planks and branches placed there a number of young oysters were attached, some of them nearly half an inch in diameter. Those of bad quality, which had been placed in the bay, had from the removal completely changed their nature, and had become excellent for use.

The Irrepressible Conflict in Virginia.

From the Wheeling (Va.) Intelligencer, Jan. 23.

On Saturday last we received from Parkersburg, a copy of the Gazette and Courier, containing a marked copy of the resolutions of protest passed at "a citizens' meeting" in that county, against the passage of the mammoth disunion project now pending in our Legislature, and known as the "bill for arming the State," by which it is proposed to saddle the State with an additional oppressive debt of over half a million dollars. We have already raised our voice against this bill. Our Richmond correspondent has warned the people of Western Virginia against its insidious purpose, and in addition Mr. Porter, in his remarks published by us Saturday, has shown it up as a sectional spoils-plunder scheme, which can benefit no portion of the State save Richmond, where it is proposed to build an immense armory. We are glad that a portion of the people of the West are moving in this matter, and thus showing themselves not only adverse to recklessly squandering the public money, and adding to our already oppressive taxation, but also showing that they will never unite in any scheme in which there lurks one feature of that hydra-headed monster Disunion.

The resolution of the Wood county people is as follows:

Resolved, That the plan for the re-organization of the militia of this State, as recommended by Gov. Wise in his late message, is inexpedient and uncalled for. Such a plan could be carried into effect only at an increased cost to the State, would greatly increase the burdens of tax-payers, as it proposes to create numerous additional officers, with clerk assistants, corps of engineers; to equip and arm an octave militia at public expense, and to place large quantities of arms and ammunition at numerous points within the State. It proposes to give to the Governor alone power to appoint field-officers and captains. It would interfere injuriously with the industrial interests of the State, by withdrawing large numbers of citizens from occupations of practical labor, and compel them frequently to drill and do military duty, under heavy and summary fines and penalties, at the "discretion" of commanding officers. It would have the effect of pressing the mirmidons to the duties of industrious and useful classes of citizens from other portions of the country, and in this respect be a serious draw-back to our prosperity; our action should be to induce others to settle upon and cultivate our wild and waste lands, invest their capital, and establish manufactories to give shape and value to the inexhaustible beds of minerals found in nearly all sections of our State, and to the vast forests of timber that grow upon our hills.

A BIT OF ROMANCE.—A short time since, a young lady who has been a resident of this city for about a year past, started for California to marry a man she has never seen.—The gentleman is a partner of the lady's brother, through whose efforts the acquaintance commenced, which resulted in a marriage contract. The gentleman's business being such as required his constant presence, his lady love heroically resolved to meet him on the Pacific coast, and has accordingly left here for that purpose. Such is the romance of real life.—Dodge Co. Citizen.

Peeps at the Sky.

The New York Century for this week has an instructive article on "The Heavens," from which we condense the following:

For several months the evening sky, save when lighted up by the moon, possessed unusually little interest to the ordinary observer. Only two or three stars of the first magnitude, and but a small sprinkling of the second were visible, their planetary neighbors having been apparently frightened by a panic off the great Celestial Change At present it is very different. 'Confidence has revived' and no fewer than half a dozen of these bodies, independent of the sun and moon, are within view during some portion of the night; while the finest constellations that adorn the Celestial vault appear in the eastern sky. No other section of the heavens presents so magnificent a spectacle as that which now comes into view between the hours of five and nine o'clock in the evening.

"Shortly after sunset Venus, the goddess of beauty, is seen in the west, having recently emerged from the Sun's rays; while Jupiter, king of the gods, displays his serene visage on the eastern horizon. Saturn, on account of his venerable age, we presume, is more dilatory in rising; but, a little past eight, has become, next to Jupiter, the most conspicuous object in the orient. Uranus preceded both the last, but is too indistinct to be readily detected by the naked eye, surrounded as it is with such attractive objects in the constellation Taurus. The fiery countenance of Mars can only be seen after three o'clock, A. M., and that of Mercury not until three hours later, being the Sun's last visible precursor. In a few days it will have disappeared from view altogether.

"The first named of these planets (Venus) is now in the constellation Aquarius, between twenty-five and thirty degrees east of the Sun. Its distance from the Earth is about one hundred and fifty millions of miles.

When at its superior conjunction, or on the opposite side of the Sun, as it was on the 27th of September last, its distance from us was thirteen millions of miles greater; but since then, it has been gradually approaching and will continue to move in this direction until next July, when it will be only twenty-seven millions distant.

Jupiter is about eight degrees east of the bright star Pollux, in Gemini, and apparently travelling towards the west among the fixed stars. Within three months it has moved between two and three degrees, and it will so continue nearly as much longer.

Jupiter is now nearly in opposition to the Sun, and, therefore, one hundred and ninety millions of miles nearer us than it will be at its conjunction, six months hence.

Saturn is now in the constellation Leo, about three degrees to the north west of the bright star Regulus, towards which it has been travelling until lately. Its distance is fully twice as far as that of Jupiter, but will decrease slightly for the next two months.

Mars may be observed rising shortly after three o'clock in the morning, to the south-east It is at present within the four stars forming the constellation Libra, nearly two degrees east of the star Zubenesch. Its eastward course will continue some time longer.

Mercury, as we write, is some twenty degrees west of the Sun; but will gain a little on this, and afterwards rapidly recede and disappear. Owing to its proximity to the Sun and the length of twilight, it is difficult to catch a glimpse of this planet with the naked eye in Central and Northern Europe. There is no difficulty in seeing it here, when at the point of greatest elongation, which occurs six or seven times a year. Its light is less brilliant than that of Venus; but very beautiful, and sufficient to distinguish the planet from any of the fixed stars.

WINTER.

From his den in the darkened North he comes,
With a thousand shadowy forms,
To fetter the sea with a blast of his breath,
To take a king's share in the harvest of death,
And revel in withering storms!

Oh, a grim old tyrant, and gray is he,
With the rules of 'leven upon a year;
His guard is a hurricane wrapping him round,
And the sun is the jewel with which it is bound,
Till clouds to unrobe him appear.

He laughs at the long-armed ghosts of the wood,
That watch o'er the graves of the flow'rs:
And he mockingly decks them with crystals of light,
And wraps their still forms in a garment of white,
Brought out of the sands of his hours.

He breathes on the river and bids it lie
Unmoving—a thing of death;
He stilleth the sun in a storm bearing cloud,
He covers the earth with an ice-threaded shroud,
And fastens it on with a breath.

The Old Year dies in his deadly grip,
And aside from the present is cast;
But a New Year springs from its icy grave,
And strong in its youth the foe to brave,
Shall live when the Winter is past.

[Written expressly for the Daily Sentinel.]

TWENTY STEPS TO ONE WOMAN'S HEART.

Well, we were introduced. I, full of a great absorbing purpose; she unconscious, unreserved and frank. One calculating upon every glance and word; the other entirely innocent of any design. You will remember, Chartsey, that, during the greater part of that day I succeeded in appropriating her society to myself, and I found out very soon that Miss Tharber had a natural mental endowment quite equal to the physical. Not an intellectual woman, to split metaphysics and tilt theology with pedantic men, but a mind whose lessons had been learned from the heart, brimful of womanly lore, such as men admire. You may imagine my condition when we strolled off together, having made up my mind to make Blanche love me. Alone with the belle of a continuous season, already beset by talent and wealth where ever she moved, you may also conjecture the risk of my adventures. However I treated the Juno like a woman, never syllabled a word of flattery or praise. We floated together on the lake, and I read Marmion to her; we joined the company, and in one of the nameless games, I kissed her, as Jerry said, in good old English style. Time never makes as rapid progress as when the boy god holds the reins, and that day floated swiftly away like a rose-tinted dream, from which I woke to find myself irretrievably lost—swallowed up.

The next day I took leave of Lazylake with a sigh and a true lover's glance towards the Locusts. I said to myself on the cars, "There is nothing so peerless about her after all. The magic is impotent among the trees and valleys—quite ductile, and as for being a De Medicis—poo-poo! I even plunged down deeper into the scenery of myself and patronizingly patted my pride on the back and said, "You've left an impression old fellow, rest easy!"

When I met the De Barres and the Battles, and Miss Mardigan and a whole host of the Bond street beauties, a few days after, I found that either my standard of womanly perfection had been raised, or they had depreciated materially in the interim. The creamy gossip and garrulity of the volatile Miss Mardigan, I discovered to be miserably insipid. The Battles lacked something undescribable, which before I had never deemed requisite, and the De Barres were voted a bore. Revised Statutes, treated only of the law divine. Becklin and Flock grew to be jailors, and there was imminent danger of my being converted into that most despicable of objects, a love-sick swain. I felt it and brought up a great deal of borrowed philosophy to ballast my mind. Gravely set it down as youthful enthusiasm, very laughable and all that, and then accepted an invitation through Mary, to visit the Locusts. A furlough was obtained, and with Mary for companion, I went up the Hudson again.

The Colonel's carriage took us up to the house, where we arrived at sunset, and were met at the gate by Blanche. As my eye fell upon her face and figure once more, my heart gave a throb as though of inward joy, and sighed as a man might who hears his sentence pronounced.

The Tharber family consisted of the Colonel, whilome lawyer, now statesman, whose business was mainly transacted at Albany.—Very potent and grave, without being reverend; of commanding appearance and imperative eye that fell upon me like a great moral interrogation and seemed to penetrate a great deal deeper than I liked. He wore his silver hair in noble erection, brushed up from a broad, cold forehead, leaving the intellectual tablet clear for every one to read. Mrs. Tharber was a grand specimen of physical development; in fact, I never saw so much rosy vitality, good nature and refinement done up in one feminine package and surmounted by a matron's cap and gold spectacles. Blanche greeted us with evident pleasure, and presented us to her father who performed a very dignified bow and felt happy to meet any of the relatives of his friend, my uncle, (at the same time burrowing into my soul with his doubtful eye) and then went to his study.—The mother called me Lem, shook hands with me, and smiled benignantly. Those two days, Chartsey, were double-plated ones—it was a fragrant change from "Chitty on special pleadings" to Love on the language of flowers—a foolhardy venture from the shore of prose to the depths of poetry—riding out on dashing horses—prospecting about in romantic glens, moonlight sails in the coves of the Hudson—occasionally finding myself alone with the white armed lady and not daring to transgress the limits of her own friendly intimacy. I am narrating all this to show you the progress of my conquest, not for anything special or startling that occurred. This visit was the second degree conferred upon the noviciate in Love's order.—All that had been doubtful in my own mind was confirmed, there was no longer any hope for me. The chains were rivited, and I was added to the captives. But was the heroine aware of my submission?

Ah, that was a protopic theme of conjecture and hope and much inward tribulation, amounting to about this: that the whole family would have been shocked exceedingly at such a discovery, evidently trusted their jewel in my company from some unaccountable conviction that I would not make love to her—a conviction shared by the daughter herself. So I reasoned from the frank and cordial conduct, the unreserved manner and the apparent confidence placed in me. It is true the penetrating eye of the father shot a bolt of inquiry at me when we met the two or three times, and the marked civility seemed to be intended to convey some such sentence as—'be careful, young man, and not overstep the limits of our hospitality,' but the mother conversed with me, joked and laughed on almost every theme but that of the daughter; and the daughter herself, as I said before, during those two days, was on several occasions left in my society for a few moments. On the afternoon of the second day, while we were preparing to depart, a gentleman came up the graveled avenue to the house, and our attention was attracted to him by Blanche clapping her hands childishly together, exclaiming—

"Hartington!"

I looked at Hartington as he approached—remarked that he was about forty years of age—was good-looking and robust—dressed rather extravagantly, and wore a blue linen cravat and jaunty palm leaf hat. He was introduced as Mr. Rufus Hartington, of Mobile. In half an hour afterwards, we were rolling towards the depot; and so ended the second degree.

"Mary," said I, as the carriage left the Locusts, "I hope the Tharbers feel a moiety of the pleasure in our society that we have in the visit."

"I am sure I have not been very stupid," she replied, "but I will not say as much for you."

"Bless your little heart," I answered, "you were entertaining enough for a dozen. I shall never go upon enchanted ground again without the aid of your little tongue."

"There, that will do, Lem; I see you are light-hearted. I hope you have not left anything behind."

"Nothing vital, my dear."

"What do you say to the beauty now?" she asked.

"Say," I answered, "that she is a lovely woman, but not the transcendant queen I had hoped."

"If I were a man," Mary added, "I should love to win such a woman."

SINGER'S GENUINE

THE SENTINEL.

COMMERCIAL.

FRIDAY EVENING, January 27th, 1860.

Money Matters.

Eastern Exchange is still at 2 per cent. premium, but the demand not very pressing, and the banks readily supply these customers at the current rate. Money at banks easy, and the offerings of good business paper are pretty much all taken by the regular houses.

THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY COMPANY, OF CANADA.—Traffic receipts for week ending January 14, 1860:

Passengers	$16,162 99
Freight and Live Stock	34,077 70
Parcels, Mails, &c., &c.	1,492 46
	$51,733 15
Corresponding week last year	32,290 17
Increase	$19,454 98

Commercial.

Receipts by Railroad for the 24 hours ending noon to-day include:

Flour, bbls	615	Dressed hogs, No	220
Wheat, bus	1,962	Hides, lbs	454
Oats, bus	400	Butter, lbs	200

The wheat market opened buoyantly to-day, especially for No. 1 Spring; about 10,000 bushels of which sold at $1 in store, and there were buyers for more than was offering. Extra sold at $1,03@1,04 delivered, and one or two samples of Club went as high as the inside figure. The sales include a small lot of White Winter at $1,12½. Some 500 bbls Spring Extra flour changed hand at $4,62½ in store. Coarse grains quiet. Barley very dull. Shelled corn the same, and will not readily bring more than 36c. Oats 35c for local use. No specific ve demand for any description of grain but wheat, and the present demand for that is about all of the speculative kind. Grass seed is very scarce and Timothy is quoted firm at $2,60@2,70.

Dressed hogs were in good demand for packing and very firm, averages of 200 to 225 lbs selling at $5,60@6,25.

CHICAGO, January 26th.—Receipts: 561 bbls flour, 10,201 bus wheat, 97,339 bus corn, 6,924 bus oats, 900 bus rye, 1,662 bus barley.

The receipts of hogs, live and dressed, to-day amount to 775, and the market was decidedly firmer. Dressed hogs were sold at $5,60@6,25, and closed very firm, with an upward tendency. Live hogs were also in good demand and sales ranged from $4,65@5,00—none of the lots offered being very desirable or heavy.

In Provisions the market was quiet and still firm.—The demand for Mess Pork at $15,75 continues; but buyer would not go beyond that price and we have but 100 bbls to report. Out Meats are scarce and the market firm, with little or none offered, except for immediate shipment. Bulk meats are firmly held at 6 and 8c and shoulders packed, to be delivered in ten days; 5¾c for delivery on the 1st of February, and 7½c for sides for delivery in about ten days. Smoked meats in fair request, with sales of a small lot of sides at 7¾c. Meats in sweet pickle are in good report for the Baltimore and New York markets, and we report a sale of 100 bbls hams at 8½c, and 150 bbls shoulders at $10,50 @ $10,75 bbl. Lard is in fair inquiry at 9½c, with sales of 100 bbls prime country at that figure. City lard, however, is generally firmly held at 9¾c.

The flour market is dull, and the transactions continue light at $4,60@4,80 for fair to choice spring extras. Wheat is quiet and inactive—buyers and sellers being 2@2½c apart. A few lots of Spring on track were sold at 96c@$1,03 to millers, $1 for No. 1 in store, and 98c for Rejected. Corn continues in good demand, and prices advanced to-day 1c, but at the close the market was rather quiet. About 20,000 bushels were sold at 35@36c for No. 1, 42½@43c for Mixed in store. There was a better inquiry for oats to-day and prices advanced 1c, with limited transactions at 30½@31c. Rye quiet and steady at 52c for No. 1 in store and 50@52c for lots on track. Barley quiet and unchanged—sales being made at 70c for No. 1 in store and 70@72c for barley on track. Timothy seed was in active demand, and sales were made at $2,62½ delivered, the value of 200 bbls in private sales. Clover seed is also in good request; but the limited offerings deterred buyers from bidding, and the only sale reported was a lot of fair quality at $4,80. Highwines very dull, quiet and rather heavy, with but limited transactions at 21c. Alcohol 32c.—Press & Tribune.

MILWAUKEE DAILY MARKET.

FRIDAY EVENING, Jan. 27th—7 P. M.

FLOUR—The only transaction in flour reported to-day was a sale of 500 bbls "Steam Mills" Spring Extra at $4,62½.

WHEAT—Firm and active. Prices unchanged. Sales: 350 bus No. 2 at 98c on track; 200 bus No. 1 at 99c; 1,000 bus do on track at $1, and 10,000 bus do in store at same figure; 145 bus Club delivered at $1,03; 400 bus Extra at $1,03; (a sale of Extra was also reported at $1,04, but we did not hear the amount); 125 bus White Winter at $1,12½.

OATS—Quiet at 35c delivered.

BARLEY—Dull and nominal.

CORN—Ear 33@35c; Shelled 35@36c. Sales 100 bus shelled at 36½c.

GRASS SEED—Scarce and higher. We note a small sale of Timothy at $2,60.

BUTTER—Steady with a fair supply in market at 10@11c for firkin and 12@13c for crock and roll.

DRESSED HOGS—Firm with a good demand for all serving. Sales:

CAUTION TO INFRINGERS.

Patents issued in the United States, Nov. 8th, 1853, Reissued, Jan. 4th, 1859. Second Patent, March 6th, 1860. Extended seven years, by the Commissioner, Jan. 24th, 1860.

This improvement consists in making regulating valves of a peculiar form, rapidly increasing ratio of opening, by increasing the width of the opening made in the valve, over the previous construction, for the same number of ordinary turns in use—by combining increased width of opening, with accelerated valve motion. My patent valve is so formed and so arranged as to reduce the resistance to the piston's motion, (or reaction of the engine,) the power to open and close the valve, to the minimum of power necessary to counteract that resistance; and from the aperture, by the addition of equal amount of the governor's centrifugal force, to the extreme of the governor's centrifugal decrease in its effects.

Therefore, in the action of valves combined with governors, as heretofore used. And as this effect can be produced by many different mechanical forms, I shall not confine myself to any really independent one in my improvements; by which infringers have imposed upon the public, therefore I request all to examine carefully all such improvements before purchasing, as I am assured they will find my improvements in valves or governors, to see if the application of this principle is not the best disclosed in the art, and therefore one in which I am not involved in their construction, and which I am now considered permanently established. Facilities for acquiring a real education are here offered, unequalled in all the West. For Circulars explaining Course of Instruction address R. BOOTH,
